HISTORY OF 223 W. TAYLOR STREET BUILDING

In 1932, the Texas Oil Company (now Texaco, Inc.) purchased the lot located at 223 W. Taylor Street, Griffin, Georgia. During that year it constructed a service station which was operated for approximately 35 years as the Jack Collins Texaco Service Station.

On January 21, 1970, Texaco sold the property to Dan and Fred Smith who sold it to Will Hill Newton, Jr. on February 9, 1970. Since 1970, the property has been leased to various tenants and used for a variety of purposes including a cab company, vacuum cleaner repair and most recently it has been a car cleanup and used car sales business.
